

About the editorial team

Yaëlle Amsellem-Mainguy, PhD, is a sociologist. Her research fields are the sociology of youth, sexuality, health and gender. She works at the French National Institute of Youth and Community Education (INJEP). She is also Editor of Agora débats/jeunesses, a French scientific review in social sciences dedicated to youth and youth policy issues and published by the Presses de Sciences Po.

Maurice Devlin, PhD, is Jean Monnet Professor and Director of the Centre for Youth Research and Development at the National University of Ireland, Maynooth. He is joint chairperson of the North-South (all-Ireland) Education and Training Standards Committee for Youth Work, the Irish correspondent for the European Knowledge Centre on Youth Policy (EKCYP), and a former member of the Pool of European Youth Researchers (PEYR). He is also currently Co-Vice President for Europe (including the Russian Federation) of the Research Committee on Youth of the International Sociological Association.

Günter J. Friesenhahn, PhD, is Professor of European Community Education Studies and Dean of the Faculty of Social Studies at the University of Applied Sciences in Koblenz, Germany. Currently he is Vice President of the European Association of Schools of Social Work (EASSW). His teaching and research areas are social professions in Europe, international youth work and diversity studies.

Francine Labadie is a political scientist and project manager of the Youth Observatory at INJEP. She also co-ordinates the Observation/Evaluation research unit of the institute. She was rapporteur for several reports on youth and youth policies at the planning authority, now France Stratégie (Prime Minister's Office). Recently, she led the two reports published by the Youth Observatory/INJEP via la Documentation française in 2012 and in 2014. She has been a member of the editorial committee of the review Agora débats/jeunesses since its creation.

Koen Lambert holds a Master's degree in modern history from the University of Ghent. He worked as a civil servant at the Ministry of the Flemish Community on local youth policy in Flanders and in 1990, he became the director of JINT, the National Agency in the Flemish Community for Youth in Action, the youth chapter of the Erasmus+ Programme.

Matina Magkou is a consultant, researcher and project manager in the fields of culture, youth, civil society and communication. She has been involved in youth structures and training at the European level since 2000 and has been a member of the European Youth Forum Bureau (2002-03). She is a member of the Pool of Trainers of the Council of Europe and has written various publications on the field of youth. She holds a BA in French Language and Literature, a MA in European Studies and an MA in Cultural Management, Policy and Communication. She is currently finalising a PhD in Leisure studies at Deusto University (Bilbao). She co-ordinated the editorial work of this publication.

Hans-Joachim Schild has worked for the partnership between the European Commission and the Council of Europe in the field of youth, focusing on the promotion of knowledge-based youth policies and quality development and recognition of youth work and non-formal learning/education, since 2005. He has also worked in various environments in the youth sector, including the Youth Policy Unit in the Directorate-General for Education and Culture at the European Commission, an NGO in the fields of labour markets, vocational education and training, social inclusion and youth, and as a trainer and social pedagogue.

Reinhard Schwalbach has been Head of Information for International Youth Work and Youth Policy Department at IJAB – the International Youth Service of the Federal Republic of Germany – since 1994. He has been active as a volunteer in youth work and studied political science, sociology, European ethnology and educational science at the university of Marburg/Lahn. He was a trainer for the Group Leaders of International Work Camps (IJGD 1980-86) and international secretary of the German national youth council (DNK 1989-93). He has been President of the European Eurodesk Network since 2008.

Bram Spruyt is Assistant Professor of Sociology at Vrije Universiteit Brussels and a member of the research group TOR (www.vub.ac.be/TOR). He is one of the supervisors of the Flemish Youth Research Platform (www.jeugdonderzoekplatform.be/en). His main interests include the sociology of education, the sociology of identity and stereotypes. Apart from Perspectives on youth he is also member of the editorial board of Sociologos and the Irish Journal of Sociology.

Leena Suurpää, PhD, works as Research Director in the Finnish Youth Research Network, a multidisciplinary research community pursuing academic and applied research on young people, youth cultures, youth work and youth policies. Her multidisciplinary research interests are related to multiculturalism and racism as well as young people's engagement in the diverse fields of civil society, policy environments and welfare structures.

Howard Williamson, PhD, is Professor of European Youth Policy at the University of Glamorgan. He is also Affiliate Professor in Youth and Community Studies at the University of Malta and Visiting Fellow at the Institute for Social Research in Zagreb. Previously, he worked at the universities of Oxford, Cardiff and Copenhagen. He is a Joint Negotiating Committee-qualified youth worker and has been involved in youth work practice for many years. He has worked on a range of "youth issues" such as learning, justice, substance misuse, exclusion and citizenship at European and national levels. Currently he co-ordinates the Council of Europe's international reviews of national youth policies.

Antonia Wulff has a background in the Organising Bureau of European School Student Unions (OBESSU) and is a former chair of the Council of Europe Advisory Council on Youth. She holds a Master of Sciences in Sociology and currently works with international education policy.

Note: For this volume, the editorial team counted on the support of two invited reviewers, Manfred Zentner and Adina Marina Călăfăteanu, who are listed in the Contributors section.